Identifying Signs of Rodent Infestation

The first step in controlling a rodent infestation is to identify the signs of their presence. Here are some common signs to look out for:

Droppings - Rodent droppings are a sure sign of their presence. They are usually found near food sources and along walls or baseboards.

Gnaw marks - Rodents have strong teeth that they use to gnaw on anything from wires to furniture. Check for chewed-up food packaging, holes in walls or baseboards, and gnawed electrical wires.

Nests - Rodents often make nests out of materials like paper, fabric, and insulation. Look for nests in dark, secluded areas like attics, basements, and crawl spaces.

Sounds - Rodents are active at night, so listen for scratching, rustling, or squeaking noises coming from your walls, ceilings, or floors.

Preventing Rodent Infestation

Preventing rodents from entering your home or business is the best way to avoid an infestation. Here are some prevention tips:

Seal all entry points - Rodents can enter through even the smallest of openings, so seal up any cracks, holes, or gaps in your walls, floors, and ceilings.

Keep food sources sealed - Rodents are attracted to food, so keep all food sources in sealed containers or in the fridge.

Eliminate clutter - Rodents love to hide in cluttered areas, so declutter your home or business to minimize potential hiding spots.

Clean up regularly - Regularly clean up any spills, crumbs, or debris, and dispose of garbage properly.

DIY Rodent Control Methods

If you have a small rodent problem, there are some DIY methods you can try to control the infestation. Here are a few:

Traps - Snap traps and live traps can be effective at catching rodents. Make sure to use the right size trap for the type of rodent you are dealing with.

Peppermint oil - Rodents dislike the smell of peppermint oil, so you can use it to deter them. Soak cotton balls in peppermint oil and place them around potential entry points.

Ultrasonic devices - Ultrasonic devices emit high-pitched noises that rodents can't stand. Place them in areas where rodents are likely to enter.

Professional Rodent Control Services

If you have a large or persistent rodent problem, it's best to call in the professionals. Calling a professional pest control service in Perth can be necessary for several reasons:
