

An Breakdown of Various Forms of Men's Shirts

Casual Vs. Formal

Traditionally, men's shirts are classified as formals and casuals. Formals, as the name indicates, are intended for formal occasions such as for example likely to work, attending official functions, and visiting every other places where dignity and good appearance need to be maintained. Formals usually have dark colors or subtle light colors. The design isn't extravagant and usually done with just one color. For a checked shirt, the lines are produced with another matching color.

Casual shirts indicate fun and play. These could have vibrant and extravagant designs. Bright colors and funny patterns are accustomed to attract attention. There are no set rules for designing casuals. The designer is often as creative as possible. It can be weird, funny, or iconoclastic. If the formal shirts represent the stiff upper lip of officialdom, casuals denote the carefree hilarity of fun and mirth. Types of casual shirts are camp shirt, bush shirt, guayabera, and sports-related shirts like tennis shirt and baseball shirt.

Virtually all kinds of shirts may be fitted into the group of either formal or casual. A third category of men's shirts is T-shirts (or tee-shirts). Normally, T-shirts come under the category casual wear. However, you can find numerous different types of T-shirts available. T-shirts have enough merits to be viewed as another category.

The World Of T-shirts

In the traditional sense, T-shirts may be defined as collar-less and button-less shirts. However, currently you can find T-shirts in the market with both collar and buttons. T-shirts have a huge market out there. To tap the requirements of new forms of T-shirts, designers have adopted many innovations such as for instance collars and buttons. Ringer T-shirts are a typical example of collared T-shirts.

T-shirts are probably the most sold-out item in the group of men's shirts. They could be highly informal and easy on the body. Of late, T-shirts have become a medium for expressing one's ideology and passion for sports. Sportsman's jerseys are the most popular example of the category. The jerseys of famous sports clubs and stars are sold in millions. The clubs of numerous sports leagues and the stars in these leagues would be the catalysts that spur T-shirt sales. However, the most famous and the absolute most sold-out T-shirt is one that offers the famous photograph of the Argentinean revolutionary Ernesto Che Guerra.
